Graduate Student Prize

Awarded each year for the best Astronomy research paper submitted to the Prize committee. The submitted materials are quite often derived from the dissertation of the student, but they can be from any original research. In the case of work done in collaboration with a faculty member, that faculty member should write a letter to the committee in which their participation and that of the student are clearly detailed. The Prize winner receives a check for $500 when the Prize lecture is delivered.
